

This filing relates to the proposed merger of equals transaction pursuant to the terms of that certain Agreement and Plan of Merger, dated as of March 21, 2005 (the "Merger Agreement"), by and among Entegris, Inc., a Minnesota corporation ("Entegris"), Mykrolis Corporation, a Delaware corporation ("Mykrolis"), and Eagle DE, Inc., a Delaware corporation and a wholly-owned subsidiary of Entegris ("Eagle Delaware"). The Merger Agreement is on file with the Securities and Exchange Commission (the "SEC") as an exhibit to the Current Report on Form 8-K filed by each of Entegris and Mykrolis on March 21, 2005, and is incorporated by reference into this filing.

The following is the text of an e-mail sent by Entegris' President and Chief Executive Officer to Entegris' employees.

It's hard to believe that two weeks have passed since we announced the merger-of-equals transaction between Entegris and Mykrolis. One of my goals is to provide continuous communication to you with regard to the status of the merger.

I'm pleased with the progress we're making towards the finalization of the merger. Since the announcement, I've had the opportunity to speak with many Entegris and Mykrolis employees as well as our analysts, investors, customers and significant suppliers/partners about this important and exciting transaction. From all sources, we've received overwhelming support and recognition that bringing these two companies together makes tremendous sense strategically, operationally, technologically and financially. We will be full and equal partners in a bigger, stronger, more stable enterprise and one better able to navigate through the inevitable ups and downs of the semiconductor industry.

While the reasons for the merger are clear and compelling, there has been an understandable level of concern amongst employees because some duplicative jobs will be lost at each company as a result of this merger. We expect 95% of the jobs at Entegris and Mykrolis to be unaffected by the merger. Unfortunately but inevitably, there will be a certain level of anxiety for all employees at both Entegris and Mykrolis until it is determined and communicated to the affected employees as to which positions will be eliminated.

We are in the process of notifying the individuals who may be impacted and notifying them of what they can expect. As we work hard to complete that process as quickly as possible, I want to make you this promise - we will treat fairly and sensitively those people who are impacted; and to the extent possible, we will try to achieve the necessary staff reductions by normal attrition.

As time goes on, you may see teams of people visiting our facilities on a worldwide basis. These teams are comprised of Mykrolis and Entegris personnel and are continuing to be developed for the purpose of planning, evaluating and learning about each other's capabilities around the world. While we have a good start on the whole merger process, there is a lot of work left to do before the merger finalization.

You will continue to be kept informed of additional merger information as it unfolds. In the meantime, it is of utmost importance that we all pay attention to our ongoing daily jobs and that we remain an independent company, just as Mykrolis is, until the close of the merger.

Both Gideon Argov, the CEO of Mykrolis, and I along with our respective staffs and support teams continue to remain excited as we think about the future of the new Entegris moving forward. I look forward to getting through the regulatory and shareholder approval process and completing this important and exciting transaction.

Until then, it's business as usual.

Jim
