Entegris Launches New Website for Improved Customer Access

The mobile-enabled site includes new functionality and a new visual design

BILLERICA, Mass., Sept. 27, 2016 /CNW/ -- Entegris Inc. (NASDAQ: ENTG), a leader in specialty chemicals and advanced materials solutions for the microelectronics and other industries, has announced the launch of its new website. The site has been redesigned to offer an enhanced customer experience through simplified navigation, a robust search function, improved product selection capability and responsive design for mobile devices. The launch comes as part of the company's 50th Anniversary celebration and reflects its new branding focus on "pure" solutions for its customers.

"The new website is the result of a tremendous effort across many functions and business areas of the company," noted Entegris Vice President of Global Marketing, Wenge Yang. "It has been re-imagined to provide improved access to product and other information for our customers and is reflective of our commitment to be a world-class organization."

Entegris announced its 50th Anniversary and rebranding in July. The company, founded in 1966 as Fluoroware, now has approximately 3,500 employees worldwide, more than $1 billion in annual revenue and stands as one of the largest global, high-performance, specialty materials companies serving the microelectronics industry.

Work will continue on the new site throughout 2017 to add a commerce capability and additional customer-centric features to further enhance the customer experience. To view the new site, and for more on Entegris and its technology solutions for advanced manufacturing, visit www.entegris.com.
